Return & Rehoming Plan

Complete one two-page plan per dog. Start before the litter; update at placement.

Type into the boxes, save a copy, and share it with everyone named. Or print and fill by hand.

Confirm each person has agreed. A blank box or an unconfirmed helper means the plan needs work.

1 Identify the dog and the people

Dog / puppy name or litter ID

Birth date / estimated age

Microchip / other identifying details (update when available)

Breeder / person responsible for the litter

Phone / email

Current / intended owner

Phone / email

2 Who takes the dog back?

Primary return contact - name, phone and email

Confirmed backup if the primary person cannot help - name and contact

Where the dog will stay - person / facility and location

How to request help, response time, and transport / handoff arrangements

☐ Primary and backup contacts have agreed to their roles.

If this is for a future litter, make sure the plan can cover multiple returns at once.

Make the plan workable

Dog / puppy name or litter ID: use the matching name from page 1.

3 Care, space and costs

Care needs: food, medication, vet contact, behavior and safe housing / separation

Who pays for transport, food, veterinary care and boarding? Include a backup.

How long can care be provided? What is the backup if space, time or funds run out?

4 If a new home is needed

Who coordinates rehoming? Name and contact

How will you check the new home and share health / behavior information honestly?

Handoff plan: records, microchip contact update, follow-up person and timing

Ask any rescue or boarding provider before naming them. Do not assume they have space.

5 Confirm, share and review

- [ ] Everyone named has received the plan and agreed to their role.
- [ ] The plan covers the dog as an adult, not just during puppyhood.

Completed / reviewed by (names)

Date completed / next review date

Review at placement, when contacts or circumstances change, and at least once a year.

This is a practical planning worksheet. Record any separate ownership or contract terms separately.
